Ask any Roanoke homeowner which cleaning jobs they put off the longest, and the inside of the oven and the inside of the refrigerator will almost always make the list. Both are messy, time-consuming and easy to ignore because the doors stay closed. The Happy Housekeepers offers oven and refrigerator cleaning as part of its specialized cleaning service, so you can finally cross both off your list.

The Two Appliances Everyone Avoids

Oven interiors collect baked-on spills, grease and residue that can smoke the next time you preheat for a casserole. Over time that build-up affects how food tastes and how the kitchen smells. Refrigerators have their own problems: sticky shelves, forgotten spills in the crisper drawers and lingering odors that no box of baking soda can fully fix. Cleaning both properly means removing shelves, working into corners and taking the time most people simply do not have.

These services pair well with the company's standard residential routine, which already includes a full kitchen cleanup. Adding the inside of the oven and fridge turns a regular visit into a proper kitchen reset. Many Roanoke clients schedule these extras a few times a year, often before Thanksgiving or another holiday when the kitchen is about to work overtime, or as part of a spring or fall cleaning.

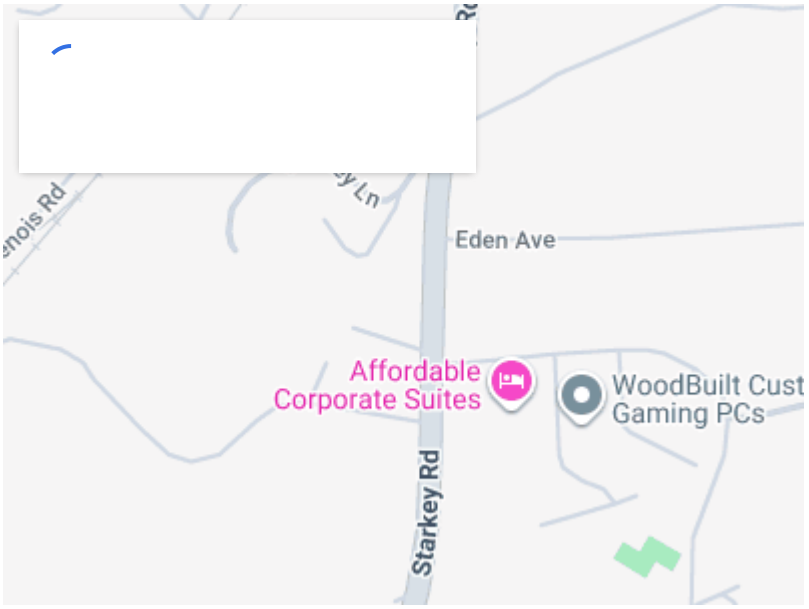

They are also popular in move-in and move-out situations. Renters leaving an apartment near downtown Roanoke want the appliances spotless before the landlord inspects. Buyers moving into a home in Cave Spring or Salem want to know Helpful site the oven they are about to cook in is genuinely clean. The Happy Housekeepers handles move-in and move-out cleanings regularly and can include appliance interiors as part of that visit.

If you have stainless steel appliances and a preferred cleaner, the crew will use it on the exterior. Otherwise the company supplies all of its own products and equipment. Employees are bonded and insured, so you can be at work while the kitchen gets done. The company has served the Roanoke Valley since 1979 and has held BBB accreditation since 1993 with an A+ rating.

Appliance cleaning is also a good habit for anyone with allergies or a sensitive nose. Spills that sit in a refrigerator for weeks can develop mold, and grease that collects in an oven can produce smoke and odor every time it heats up. Having both cleaned a few times a year keeps the kitchen smelling fresh and helps your appliances perform the way they should. It is a small investment that many clients wish they had made sooner.
