

An oak-pruning discussion should begin with the particular tree and the reason you want it assessed. Record where it stands, what you have noticed and whether you know its species. Ask the assessor to explain timing for this tree rather than choosing a date from a general calendar.

Connect the tree with its surroundings

During the walkthrough, use the same tree labels as the earlier enquiry. Point out the feature you wanted assessed and the surrounding space that matters to the discussion. Ask for an explanation in terms you understand before turning the conversation into a work instruction.

This tree-care planning guide from Progressive Tree Service focuses on oak pruning discussion and the information needed to discuss it clearly.

The brief for an owner arranging work remotely

Label images and documents so a person away from the property can follow the discussion. Identify who is available on site and which questions that person can answer. Keep changes in the same record instead of leaving them in separate messages.

Questions to keep with the record

How does the proposed timing relate to the tree and the pruning being discussed? What needs to be clarified during the visit? tree care planning Ask for an explanation that connects the answer with the particular tree and proposed work, then record anything still unresolved.

A practical next step

Note what was explained and which points remain open. A question that needs further information should remain visible in the record.

Write down the explanation and any information still needed before a date is agreed.

Check that the person on site has the same scope and tree labels as the person reviewing the proposal.
