Shoreline is Salish Plumbing Co's home base, and the company's familiarity with this community runs deep. From the neighborhoods around Meridian Park and Echo Lake to the corridors along 15th Avenue and Aurora, Salish knows Shoreline's housing stock, its infrastructure quirks, and the particular demands that older mid-century homes place on their plumbing systems. As a Veteran-Native owned business built in and for this community, Salish's investment in Shoreline is genuine. The housing stock in Shoreline spans from 1940s original builds with galvanized supply lines and clay sewer laterals to 1990s and 2000s construction with Salish Plumbing Co Plumber Ballard wa copper and PVC systems that require different service approaches. Salish technicians are comfortable with all of these configurations and diagnose issues accurately without defaulting to the most expensive recommendation. Dustin Williams has been a certified plumber for over 12 years and built the team around the same standards of skill and honesty he has always held himself to. Common Shoreline service calls include repiping original galvanized supply systems in mid-century homes, sewer camera inspection for properties where root intrusion is suspected, water heater replacement in homes where the unit is ten or more years old, and bathroom and kitchen repairs during the partial remodels that are common in Shoreline's steadily improving residential market.
