Most house buyers spend far more time looking at the kitchen than at the roof above it. Yet across Cardiff, where the housing ranges from Victorian and Edwardian terraces in Canton, Roath and Grangetown to interwar semis in Whitchurch and 1970s estates in Llanedeyrn, the roof can hide some of the costliest surprises in any property. Redland Roofing Cardiff is an independent, family-run business that has served Cardiff and South East Wales for over 30 years, and our pre-purchase roof surveys help buyers understand exactly what they are taking on. A pre-purchase roof survey is a focused inspection carried out before you commit to buying. We look closely at the condition of the roof covering, whether tiles or slates, along with ridge tiles, chimney brickwork, flashing, lead work, valleys, guttering and fascias. Flat roofs on rear extensions, dormers and garages get the same attention, as they are common across the city and traditional felt typically lasts only 10 to 15 years. You then receive a written report setting out what we found. The survey costs £200 plus VAT, a clear price for a clear piece of work. The report gives you practical information to act on. It might reveal slipped or missing tiles, cracked flashing around a chimney, failed lead joints, blocked gutters or a felt flat roof nearing the end of its life. Knowing this before you buy means you can budget properly, ask the right questions and factor any repairs into your plans. For properties in conservation areas such as Pontcanna, Llandaff or parts of Roath, it also helps to know that future work may need Cardiff Council consent if materials change. Good information now prevents unwelcome surprises later.
